Dear Mr. Weisberg:

A number of weeks ago our client, SAGA MAGAZINE, conferred with us as to the request set forth in your letter of February 22 for $500 in connection with the New Orleans litigation.

We have recommended to our client that in the event you execute a general release in favor of SAGA MAGAZINE, GAMBI PUBLICATIONS and their respective officers, directors, employees and agents, that a check in the sum of $250 be issued to you immediately thereafter.

We understand that you incurred certain expenses in connection with the New Orleans lawsuits but they were indeed trifling by comparison with the expenditures of both Dell and our client, including prolonged and frequent telephone conferences, legal research and preparation for the affidavits and pleadings, the expenses for all of which are readily documentable.

Our client's offer for payment of $250 to you in exchange for the release is predicated in large part on the desire to put an end to this entire matter. If, however, the proposal above set forth does not meet with your approval, may we suggest that you respond directly to your attorney and through him communicate with us further on this matter.

Sincerely,

Stephen H. Gross
